Course name: Music, Media, and Public Spheres
Course number: (GI) COMM 3005 BRGE
Programs offering course: Berlin Open Campus, Berlin Global Architecture and Design
Open Campus Track: Communications, Journalism, and New Media Track
Language of instruction: English
U.S. semester credits: 3
Contact hours: 45
Term: Fall 2019

Course Description

This course examines music markets and the ongoing evolution of the music industry with a focus on the cultural and social influence of music, the changing perspective of music consumers, and the role of artists and producers. Students will learn about varying debates and models within the music industry, the interaction of music with other media, and the intersection of traditional music forms (radio, records, and concerts) with new technologies such as on-line audio streaming. The course will also explore the importance and economic contribution of popular and alternative music festivals. Utilizing the city as a field site for study, this course will encourage students to engage with a range of music performances and events. The course is taught using a dynamic mix of lectures, case study discussions, student presentations, and field trips to a local music label and a techno club.

Learning Objectives

By completing this course, students will:

- Develop a critical understanding of the music industry and discuss the role of the artist
- Develop problem solving and communication skills for students through coursework
- Explain the business models of music producers, marketers and distributors
- Evaluate and situate the socio-cultural, ethical, and political aspects of popular music in Germany with a special focus on Berlin
- Explore case studies where popular music has impacted upon society internationally, nationally, and locally
Course Prerequisites

Students should have completed a level 2000 class in music, anthropology, marketing, or critical theory prior to taking this course.

Methods of Instruction

The course will be taught using lectures, seminars, case study discussions, group presentations or performances, as well as field trips to local venues, street performances, and music-related businesses or organizations. Classroom activities will involve group work and critical discussion groups considering and arguing on key debates facing the music industry today. Students will also be expected to carry out an ethnographic field observation task at a local music event, and present their notes to class for discussion. Invited guest speakers, musicians or producers, will add to the learning objectives of this course.

Assessment and Final Grade

1. Group Presentation: 20%
2. Web Media Project: 20%
3. Learning Blog Entries / Short Essays: 20%
4. Final Exam: 20%
5. Class participation: 20%

TOTAL: 100%

Course Requirements

Group Presentation / Performance

Students in small groups of three must conduct a 15-minute presentation on a performance we did not attend together, or alternatively students (as individuals or small groups) perform original compositions to reflect and articulate the themes and topics explored in this course. The presentation must include critical observations of the venue (sound management, crowd control, revenue creation opportunities) and audience (market identification, i.e. age, gender, ethnicity, socio-economics).

Web Media Project
Students in small groups will develop a small website, using a variety of multimedia forms, as a snapshot of a popular music genre where live performances are accessible in Berlin. This website will comprise of hyperlinks to other sites relating to the genre, as well as original audio, motion-picture, and/or recordings from their site visits in Berlin. The original data captured by students can relate to venues, performances, or public advertisements of the music genre (including track/album sales advertising, live concert adverts, other live appearances by public figures relating to the music industry). The quality of the project will be measured by the students’ collective ability as a group to develop an accessible, easy-to-navigate website that utilizes a range of multimedia to represent a discourse on language and representation within the music industry in Berlin.

Two Short Essays

Short essays are 1,000-1,250 words in length and engage with examples of popular music, or popular music events, and an evaluation of the music or event. More detailed instructions will be given in advance of each assignment. Each paper must include at least 2 scholarly sources. These papers will be graded based on the students’ ability to critically deconstruct the symbols and narratives present in the music or event, and how these relate to the creation of, or manipulation of, a popular music market.

Final Paper

The final paper is 1,750 words long. This paper must be an in-depth analysis of one of the topics discussed in class, and include and discuss at least five scholarly sources. The paper will be graded according to the ability of the student to develop a coherent and critical argument addressing the essay question, whilst demonstrating comprehensive understanding of the readings from the course.

Participation

Participation is valued as meaningful contribution in the digital and tangible classroom, utilizing the resources and materials presented to students as part of the course. Meaningful contribution requires students to be prepared in advance of each class session and to have regular attendance. Students must clearly demonstrate they have engaged with the materials as directed, for example, through classroom discussions, online discussion boards, peer-to-peer feedback (after presentations), interaction with guest speakers, and attentiveness on co-curricular and outside-of-classroom activities.
Attendance Policy

Regular class attendance is required throughout the program, and all unexcused absences will result in a lower participation grade for any affected CIEE course. Due to the intensive schedules for Open Campus and Short Term programs, unexcused absences that constitute more than 10% of the total course will result in a written warning.

Students who transfer from one CIEE class to another during the add/drop period will not be considered absent from the first session(s) of their new class, provided they were marked present for the first session(s) of their original class. Otherwise, the absence(s) from the original class carry over to the new class and count against the grade in that class.

For CIEE classes, excessively tardy (over 15 minutes late) students must be marked absent. Attendance policies also apply to any required co-curricular class excursion or event, as well as to Internship, Service Learning, or required field placement. Students who miss class for personal travel, including unforeseen delays that arise as a result of personal travel, will be marked as absent and unexcused. No make-up or re-sit opportunity will be provided.

Attendance policies also apply to any required class excursion, with the exception that some class excursions cannot accommodate any tardiness, and students risk being marked as absent if they fail to be present at the appointed time.

Unexcused absences will lead to the following penalties:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Percentage of Total Course Hours Missed</th>
<th>Equivalent Number of Open Campus Semester classes</th>
<th>Minimum Penalty</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Up to 10%</td>
<td>1 content classes, or up to 2 language classes</td>
<td>Participation graded as per class requirements</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10 – 20%</td>
<td>2 content classes, or 3-4 language classes</td>
<td>Participation graded as per class requirements; written</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Week 1  Orientation Week

Class 1:1  Introduction to class

This opening lecture will introduce students to key terms and present an outline of the prominent debates in popular music studies. By the end of this lecture students will have gained fundamental knowledge and awareness of the variety of approaches used to understand and discuss popular music.

Week 2

Class 2:1  Cultural Production and Popular Music

Through a deconstruction of Adorno’s criticisms of popular music, this lecture will demonstrate to students the multiple and significant meanings and representations found in the popular music industry. Students will learn how the popular music industry shifts between being considered a creative industry and an executive-driven market.

Reading:

Class 2:2  The Concept of Public Spheres and the Role of Mass Media
Students will gain an understanding of the concept of the public sphere as developed by Habermas and will explore the role music plays within the context of mass media for constructing public spheres.

Reading:

Class 2:3  Artist and Aesthetics in Popular Music

Students will explore concepts such as the role of the artist, the art, and the audience in cultural production. In evaluating the role of the audience in this dynamic relationship, students will also explore the function and impact of recording and representation in preparation for the Web Media Project.

Reading:

Due Date for submission of first short paper

Week 3

Class 3:1  Constructing Identities through Popular Music

Media, music, and public spheres intertwine often in discourses of identity. Debates on the creation of identity through music, or the creation of music from identity, are examined in this lecture on popular musical forms.

Reading:

Class 3:2  Community and Subculture in Popular Music
Students will evaluate the multifaceted features of identity in music, with particular emphasis on the comparison of community-oriented identities and subcultural identities.

Reading:

Class 3:3 Site Visit to Tresor (or other Berlin club)

Due date for submission of second short paper.

Week 4

Class 4:1 Popular Music Industry

Through examining case studies in Europe where local government works alongside the popular music industry, this week evaluates what potential impact such partnerships have on engagement in the creative arts.

Reading:

Class 4:2 Local Music Industry

During this class students will tour, examine, and evaluate Berlin, to explore questions relating to the impact on local popular music from development, diversity, socio-economic changes, and gentrification.

Class 4:3 Site Visit to a Local Record Label

Due date for submission of Web Media Project
Week 5

Class 5:1 Socio-Political Movements and Music

Demonstrating again the interconnectivity between music and public spheres, this week examines the complex role of music in significant socio-political movements throughout the Western hemisphere. Case studies include the influence of music during historical periods such as Nazi Germany or during the US civil rights movement.

Reading:

Class 5:2 Black Popular Music

This lecture explores the rich and diverse tradition of Black music in the US, Europe, and worldwide. The session will examine how the music industry typically represents persons of African descent, with particular reference to stereotyping of ‘gang’ identity, violence, drugs / alcohol, sex, and women.

Reading:

Class 5:3 Group Presentations

Students will coordinate in small groups the running order of their speakers / performers

Due date for submission of group presentation
Week 6

Class 6:1 Gender and Popular Music

How do gender and popular music interconnect? This lecture will explore the 20th-century development in the popular music industry of women’s roles and representations, examining case studies where stereotypes and traditional gender roles are openly challenged in the public discourse through popular music.

Reading:

Class 6:2 Music Label Exercise

Students in small groups will develop a new label and present the start-up to the class in a mock investor proposal, with the instructor taking the role as an investor. This exercise requires students to amalgamate the previous classes and concepts relating to music sounds and market, marketing of music, talent acquisition and development, dissemination of music, and revenue.

Class 6:3 Concluding Discussion

Final written essay due

Readings

Optional Readings

